

APPENDIX 13: OUT-OF-PRINT MATERIALS

13.1. Library Patrons are eligible to use the Out-of-Print Materials (OOPM) services provided by the National Digital Library operated by the National Library of the Czech Republic. Service OOPM offers access to a selection of full-text copies of print documents published on CR territory that is no longer available on the market (including other, also modified, editions) and that copyright law still protects.

13.2 OOPM is accessible on the Library's website after authenticating, and OOPM users should observe the following conditions of use:

- Users can only read OOPM documents online and use them exclusively for their personal needs and for educational, teaching, or research purposes.
- Copying of OOPM documents, i.e., their printing, downloading to USB or any other different memory device, or copying them in any other way (e.g., with a mobile phone or camera) is not allowed.
- Use of any form of robots or other tools and gadgets for automated content downloading is forbidden.

13.3 Violation of these conditions of use will be perceived as a violation of copyright law and will be used as a reason for suspending the provision of this service and may be the basis for legal sanctioning for copyright infringement. In such cases, the Library is obliged to provide, upon request from DILIA, the Czech Theater, Literary, and Audiovisual Agency, and the National Library of the Czech Republic, its cooperation in ascertaining the identity of the Patron who violated these conditions.

13.3.1 The National Library of the Czech Republic collects, processes, and stores personal data from users of this service for a period of one year after use of the service, including identifying data, caches, login history, and logs.
